INFORMATION USE AND SHARING

We do not sell, trade, or transfer your personal information to third parties without your consent, except as outlined in this Privacy Policy.

SECURITY MEASURES

We implement security measures to ensure the confidentiality and integrity of your information. While no method is completely full proof, we strive to maintain the highest standards of security.

All transactions conducted on the Website are executed in a secure and controlled environment, ensuring protection against unauthorized access. In this safeguarded setting, no information is divulged during transactions, as it is encrypted to shield the User from unintentional disclosure to third parties. Notably, any data related to the User's credit and debit card information is neither received nor stored by the Company/Website in any manner.

Instead, the User directly provides this information to authorized payment gateway(s) that are equipped to handle the provided information. These payment gateways are fully compliant with the regulations and requirements stipulated by applicable laws, various banks, financial institutions, and payment franchisees with which they are associated. This stringent adherence to industry standards ensures the utmost security and confidentiality of User information during the entire transaction process.

COOKIES AND TRACKING TECHNOLOGIES

We may use cookies and tracking technologies, and information on managing cookie preferences is provided.

In our efforts to enhance the responsiveness of our sites for users, we may employ "cookies" or similar electronic tools. These tools are utilized to collect information, assigning each visitor a unique, random number as an User Identification (User ID). This approach allows us to comprehend individual user interests through the Identified Computer.

It is important to note that, unless you voluntarily identify yourself (e.g., through registration), we are unable to ascertain your identity, even when a cookie is assigned to your computer. The information stored in a cookie is limited to what you provide, such as when you request our Personalised Horoscope; it does not have the capability to read data from your hard drive. It's crucial to mention that the assignment of cookies by our advertisers to your browser (in the case of clicking on their ads) is a process beyond our control.

GENERAL

- When you visit our site, our web servers automatically gather restricted information regarding your computer's connection to the Internet, which includes your IP address. Your IP address functions as a numerical identifier enabling computers on the Internet to determine where to send data to you, such as the web pages you view.
